Cases in the United States for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal:

Dash, Inc. v Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, 682 F.2d 1229 (1982)

California statute restricting review of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control determination to petitions for writ of review in state appellate court, together with Constitutional section prohibiting administrative bodies from declaring status unconstitutional, did not deny liquor licensees due process of law by forcing them to submit to revocation by an administrative body which could not act on constitutional defenses, while limiting review of the decision to a discretionary petition for writ of review.

Cases in California Supreme Court:

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (Quintanar) 40 Cal.4th 1 (2006)

The Court unanimously held:

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control prosecutor's submitting to Department's director of chief counsel reports of hearings from three license suspension cases violated prohibition in Administrative Procedure Act (APA) against prosecutor's secretly communicating with agency decision maker or decision maker's advisor about the substance of the case, even if director or chief did not consider reports.

Cases in California Court of Appeal:

Hovanesyan v. Glendale Internal Medicine & Cardiology Group, (2017 WL2391688) Not Officially Published

The Court held:

Plaintiff tort claims were not covered by an arbitration agreement. The Court determined the arbitration agreement was unconscionable.

Nick v. City of Lake Forest (Real Party in Interest – 7-Eleven) 202 Cal.App.4th 871 (December 2014)

Court of Appeal upheld Superior Court determination that City properly issued Public Convenience or Necessity determination allowing 7-Eleven to obtain its ABC license to sell alcoholic beverages.

Nick v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (7-Eleven Real Party in Interest) 233 Cal.App.4th 194 (December 2014)

ABC properly exercised its discretion to issue 7-Eleven an ABC license to sell alcoholic beverages based upon the Agency's reliance on the City of Lake Forest finding of Public Convenience or Necessity which was issued timely based on statutory limits.

Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, 151 Cal. App.4th 1274 (2007)

The Court held:

(1) Evidence concerning whether report of hearing was distributed or made available to decisionmaker would be allowed;

(2) Department's practice of allowing its ultimate decisionmaker to have access to prosecuting attorneys' reports of hearing violated statutory prohibitions against ex parte communications;

(3) Department's practice of allowing its ultimate decisionmaker access to prosecuting attorneys' hearing reports violated Administrative Procedure Act (APA), which prohibited use of extra-record information; and

(4) No showing of prejudice was required to warrant reversal.

Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, 149 Cal. App.4th 116 (2007)

The Court held:

(1) Once licensee established prima facie case of Administrative Procedure Act (APA) violation, it was Department's burden to refute case;

(2) Department could not present refuting evidence for first time on review; and

(3) Rule that Department violated APA by having prosecuting attorney send "report of hearing" to decision-maker applied whether decision-maker rejected or adopted proposed decision of administrative law judge (ALJ).

Acapulco Restaurants, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, 67 Cal.App.4th 575 (1998)

Right of Department of Alcoholic Beverage to "interpret" rules governing its enforcement activities did not encompass ignoring explicit rule requirement that peace officers make reasonable attempt to have underage decoy make face-to-face identification of seller of alcohol after sale.

Board of Police Commissioner v. Superior Court (Chippendales) 168 Cal. App.3d 420 (1985)

Under municipal ordinance providing for suspension or revocation of cafe entertainment permit on grounds of inadequate condition of building, city board of police commissioners had no authority to revoke permit on basis of alleged overcrowding at licensed premises, which related to "use," rather than "condition" of building.
